

Abba Complete Pest Control has always been careful about germs (let's face it, we are crawling on our hands and knees in food establishments, etc. and we do deal with...you know...dead mice), meaning we are expert hand-washers. We always wear boot covers, and if requested, will wear a face mask and gloves as well.

During this time of social distancing, we realize that having a stranger come into your home is not ideal. But because mice, ants, and other pests continue to invade your home, we continue to provide service to our customers and we are taking every precaution available to us.

Here's what we are adding to our safety procedures:

- Rescheduling/postponing services at the request of our customers,
- Any technician who is sick, or has been exposed to someone who is sick, will be staying home for as long as needed.
- Our customers will not be required to physically sign our phones. We will do all communication paperless and contact-free.
- We will be wiping down tools and equipment after every job.

What we ask of you:

If you are sick, or have been exposed to someone who is sick, please inform us so we can make arrangements to reschedule. This might mean postponing your service call.

We are doing everything we can to keep our employees, customers, and partners safe, and we ask that you do the same to keep yourself and your loved ones safe. Now.... wipe down your keyboard go wash your hands!

If you decide, that you cannot wait until the COVID-19 has passed. Working together, we can keep each other safe and find a solution for your pest problem. So kick back, relax, and
